21 June 2019

Hard to believe we are in our seventh year of BerkshireStyle, the only regional resource and magazine. We tell the stories that celebrate the culture, people, history and businesses of the Berkshires. With a viewership of 4,000 visitors and 10,000 page views monthly, the momentum continues.

What is BerkshireStyle? It is a perspective that combines architectural elegance with natural grace, refined taste with authenticity. Featuring some of the most magnificent towns in the region, our online magazine covers all the bases: from arts and culture to sports and entertainment; from lifestyle to personal style; from local attractions to recommended lodgings and businesses. Geared towards residents and visitors alike, BerkshireStyle is both a source of information and a catalyst for inspiration.

Attached is information about our website, its founders, features and press. If you have any further questions or need more information, we are happy to provide.

Thanks for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Toni Tucker

BERKSHIRESTYLE is the ideal place for businesses in the Berkshire area to advertise. With an emphasis on style, our online magazine provides a remarkable experience in terms of quality content and presentation. BerkshireStyle offers a targeted audience, competitive rates and high visibility in search engines.

WHAT SETS US APART

The answer is simple. We concentrate on the exceptional. We feature some of the most accomplished people in their field. We have a distinct point of view and that is to recognize the best and authentic of the Berkshires. BerkshireStyle is both a source of information and a catalyst for inspiration.

OUR MAIN PURPOSE

We establish a valuable web presence for our advertisers, creating an opportunity to expand their markets. Our high ranking and target marketing strategy has the ability to drive traffic to business websites. We create further exposure by highlighting businesses and offer hyperlinks to websites.

Designers will find the site valuable, since we understand the look and nuance that the design industry demands. It is important that all levels of the site have credibility and a refined simplicity that inspires confidence.

Our research shows that the upscale Berkshire market is an underserved sector on the web. Increasingly people are getting their information from the Internet. Not only is it important in helping people find you, it is important in sending the right message.

WHO CAN LIVE WITHOUT STYLE?

An interview with co-founder Toni Tucker

Toni Tucker is an acclaimed photographer who is passionate about her love of animals and people; she also has a deep appreciation of great design. Through the creation of BerkshireStyle.com, she is able to combine her talents with her passions while simultaneously encouraging people to enjoy a region that has inspired her since childhood.

How does it feel to be co-founder of an award-winning online magazine?

Fabulous!!! The best news however is that we are having a wonderful ride. You know it is less about the destination than the journey. I love the journey.

What is most satisfying about this new role?

I am learning and exploring every day. There are so many parts of business about which I knew nothing. Business plans. Social media. Advertising sales. The challenge is to understand and incorporate it all. I love the networking and have met some of the most talented and fascinating people.

How have your past experiences - in life and work - contributed to this new endeavor?

I never really considered it until now but this website is a culmination of many past jobs and past experience. My father was a newspaper publisher and I grew up with the news. My first career was as an interior decorator. I then went on to work in television news. I am a photographer and have taken most of the photographs on the site. As varied as my background appears, it has all prepared me to do this work.

What does the publication do for your community and the Berkshire region?

I consider it to be a celebration of this glorious area and hope that this spirit is reflected on its pages. I hope it will continue to be a valuable resource for those who want some direction on where to go or eat in the region. We have done the legwork for you and hope you consider us to be your “new best friend in the Berkshires.”

What is unique to your e-magazine, in comparison to your competitors?

Our focus is what sets us apart. We have done our research and pass our taste on to our subscribers. There are so many choices and we want to recommend the very best.

What do you mean by “Berkshire Style”?

The Berkshire region is famous for its breathtaking beauty and has inspired a tradition of gracious living. This distinctive style is reflected in how we live, how we appreciate our natural surroundings, how we prepare meals and how we enjoy fine craftsmanship and design.

Lambs have a high profile on your website. Can you say a little about their significance?

We adore all animals and sheep in particular captured Paul's and my attention.

How do you see the publication expand and grow into the future?

We will just get better and better at what we do for the foreseeable future. After that, who knows? I am sure there are other stylish areas in the country.

CHOCOLATE SPRINGS CAFÉ

Is there anything better at this time of year than a cup of hot chocolate topped with lovely whipped cream? Add to that a group of friends, a cozy table and a chance for some live piano music and you have a perfect destination. Such is the nature of Chocolate Springs, an attractive and welcoming cafe featuring delectable chocolates hand-crafted by Joshua Needleman, one of Saveur Magazine's Top Ten Chocolate Makers.

Peer into cases filled with truffles, mousses, brilliantly sculpted dark and milk chocolates and pastries that go very nicely with hot chocolate or an espresso. Once warmed and full, a return to the cases proves irresistible. Choose from an opulent array of goodies to take home or find a small, beautifully boxed selection of these jewel-like creations for a perfect hostess gift.

Joshua Needleman is the energetic and fun genius behind Chocolate Springs Café. As chef and owner, Needleman introduces tasters to chocolates infused with flavors both exotic and traditional. This passionate connoisseur of fine food has traveled extensively and maintained shops in Paris and Manhattan; yet, he has chosen to return to the Berkshires to make his dream of a therapeutic oasis.

“The cocoa bean is a rich source of naturally occurring antioxidants, and has been shown to help lower blood pressure, improve mood, and in some cases, lose weight. That’s one reason why our hot chocolate is named Serious Hot Chocolate. In summertime we make Serious Iced Chocolate along with a variety of gelatos, sorbets and ice creams. Eating chocolate is a celebratory event: When life is good it makes it better, and when times are tough, it still makes life better.”

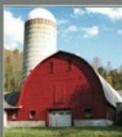

Chocolate Springs Café offers a selection of chocolates made with flavors from local, artisanal producers. The Berkshire Bon Bon, a very popular confection, uses Bourbon from Berkshire Mountain Distillers. “Cross-country skiers in nearby Kennedy Park insist on ending a beautiful day outdoors with a Serious Hot Chocolate and a few Berkshire Bon Bons.” He added, “We have also participated in local celebrations by making creations for Jacob’s Pillow in honor of their 80th anniversary and desserts for special events at Shakespeare and Company.”

Whether you choose the Champagne Cognac Truffles, featured in Time Magazine, or a chocolate infused with the flavor of fresh local raspberries, you must promise yourself a visit to this destination popularly known as Chocolate Heaven.

FROM THE LAKEVILLE JOURNAL

Capturing the stylish essence of the Tri-State area

Thu, 12/13/2012 - 10:23am

By Asher Pavel
asherp@lakevillejournal.com

SHARON

Sharon resident Toni Tucker's background in both design and in broadcasting led her, inevitably, to create the style-and-news website BerkshireStyle.com, which was launched in March 2012.

"We cover what is known as the Berkshire cultural area," she said, "including the area from Chatham and Millbrook in New York, from Kent to Norfolk in Connecticut and New Marlborough to Lenox in Massachusetts."

In the 1970s, Tucker worked as an interior designer. In the 1980s she worked both on air and behind the scenes for Channel 5 television news in New York City.

Since the 1990s, she's been working as a professional photographer. She spent about five years traveling the world with an Indian guru, acting as her official photographic chronicler. But what she really loves to photograph, Tucker said, are children and animals.

An avid dog lover, she said her three Toy Poodles and three Bichons Frisé are all champions. Her dog Faren was the top Toy Poodle in the U.S. for two years. Porter was the top Bichon Frisé for three years.

After working with the guru, Tucker retired from photography and collaborated with Paul Coughlin to design the website. By 2009 they were beginning to collect the information that would eventually become Berkshire Style.com website. Three years later the site went online and now Tucker is managing it on her own, with the help of Editorial Director Penny Stirling Michels and Marketing Manager Adriana Liduario. Three IT people maintain the operational side of the website.

The site highlights the work of "architects, designers, artists and businesses who have made their mark preserving the Berkshire aesthetic," according to the site.

"The web pages of Berkshire Style.com hold a wealth of local information inviting us all to play an active role in this beautiful community. If you have a passion for a refined simplicity, regional charm and good taste you are in the right place. After all, what is life without style?"

Tucker said what she finds inspiring about the region is that "it is untouched and beautiful." She has been coming here for years. "My grandmother had a home in Sheffield where I spent summers as a little girl."

Tucker said her goal in creating Berkshire Style was "to build a wonderful vehicle where people can have trust in the places, stores and services we recommend."

The site has an events calendar, movie times, names of architects and designers, listings of area attractions, pet resources, children's activities and resources, dining, food and entertaining; gardens, interior design, lodging, museums and historic homes, performing arts events and winter sports plus basic information about governmental agencies in the area's towns and villages.

Some more great ideas for Father's Day from Berkshire Style
By Joan On June 14, 2012

I really love the new online magazine, Berkshire Style! I subscribe to their weekly newsletter and they had some terrific ideas for Father's Day. Here are my favorites from their suggestions:

Lime Rock Park Let the inner speed demon in your Dad race forth with a gift certificate for classes at the renowned Skip Barber Racing School at the foot of the Berkshire Hills right here at Lime Rock Park. The thrill and adrenaline rush will make for an unforgettable experience for the favorite man in your life.

60 White Hollow Road, Lakeville, CT 800.221.1131

www.skipbarber.com/promotions.asp

Peter Becks Village Store Bold, vivid, colorful, with solid stripes. If this describes your Dad, how about a tie to match his personality? These beautiful silk ties, made with impeccable craftsmanship and design, are available at Peter Becks Village Store in Lakeville. No matter how extensive Dad's tie collection, these are sure to add some punch to his wardrobe.

19 Main Street, Salisbury, CT 860.596.4217 www.peterbecks.com

Bizalion's Whether Dad is a gourmet-in-the-making or just an enthusiastic gourmand, you're certain to delight with a gift from Bizalion's. Described by the New York Times as a "Marseilles-infused charcuterie-café," Bizalion's offers a rich array of gastronomical treasures. Our choice for the Dad that cooks: Bizalion's "Emerald Basket," a sampling of five of its fine collection of olive oils.
